DISPLAYS EARLY TOOTH

Most infants have a first tooth to show at six months of age or possibly a little earlier, but little Johnny Desmond White, 7 weeks old, held here by sister Patty, is quite a bit ahead of schedule. One lower tooth shows quite plainly with another one almost through. Johnny Desmond seems to thrive on the attention from his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. White, Jr. and his brothers and sisters, six of them: Henry 14; Patty 13; Jerry 12; Lisa and Laurie 9; and Tammy 6. Mr. White is the county jailer and one of the law enforcement officers employed by Appomattox. The living quarters at the jail have recently been panelled. Extensive work has recently been completed in the White's living quarters, with wood panelling and fresh paint creating a more modern interior.

available to read, on a loan basis from the Lecture Center. A very fine paperback titled "Evolution or Special Creation," by Dr. Frank Lewis Marsh was given to each person or family attending the services for the first time, Thursday evening at 7:30.
The lecture topics for the next six weeks beginning next Thursday night, Aug. 13 are; The Dominion Lost and Restored – In His Image – The Flood Story and Modern Science – The Story of The Fossils – The Great Catastrophe – Worship the Creator. anticipate that assistance will be required by more than 15,000 families at a cost expected to exceed $6 million.
More than 100,000 persons in the Corpus Christi area have received Red Cross emergency mass care since Hurricane Celia slammed across the Central Texas coast on Aug. 3. Thirteen military-staffed Army field kitchens are now in operation feeding disaster victims and relief workers at Red Cross centers.
The American Red Cross reported that Celia may become the third most costly hurricane, in terms of disaster relief expenditures, in the history of this country.
The governors of the three states hardest hit by Hurricane Camille in August 1969, John Bell Williams of Mississippi, Acting Governor C. C. Aycock of Lousiana and Linwood Holton of Virginia, urged residents of their states to support the Red Cross emergency appeal, recalling the generous assistance given them by the American people through the Red Cross last year.
Last Tuesday the Red Cross sent out a nationwide emergency appeal for a minimum of $6 million to provide relief and recovery assistance for victims of the storm. The $6 million projected figure is topped only by Hurricane Camille (1969) in which Red Cross disaster relief costs exceeded $21 million, and Betsy (1965) with expenditures of $17.5 million, officials said.
They pointed out that Red Cross budgets $10 million a year for disaster relief, which under ordinary circumstances, is sufficient to meet the emergency and recovery needs resulting from an average year's catastrophes. But ARC disaster expenditures during the past five years have totaled $88,000,000 far above the annual average.

In the weat the disease is spread by the Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever Tick. In our area the American Dog Tick is the primary carrier. It breeds outdoors, bites people readily and can be carried indoors by pets and people.
The Brown Dog Tick, another carrier, spreads the disease from animal to animal but seldom bites people.
For best protection, frequent inspection of the body and clothing to locate and remove ticks are important. Also important is prevention of the fever is frequent examination for ticks on pets. Dust containing Carbaryl (Sevin) provide some tick control when used according to direction on pets and in the soil.
Malathion and certain Pyrethrins are useful for tick control when used according to directions on the label.
